The President's Corner

This is another beginning to the continuing job of perpetuating our Association. We are beginning only in the sense that a new term lies ahead for your chosen officers, board, and commissions. Actually, because of the labors of our many predecessors, the Association has grown and prospered and now we accept the challenge of the future.

Growth in our Association must understandably come from an ever expanding interest and support of those who believe in the Whittier College tradition. Our lines of communication have been strengthened through the "new" Rock and its sister publication Pebbles from the Rock. At this writing the second issue of "The Leader," a monthly newsletter, has been mailed to key alumni leaders of Whittier College. This same group will assemble on September 10 for the Third Annual Alumni Leaders Conference. Previous meetings have inspired many new ideas, and set the new goals for which we strive.

With the thought of becoming a self-sufficient organization, we look forward to the annual Alumni Fund Campaign and to an even greater participation than the record breaking 1200 alumni who contributed this last fiscal year. Still there is little consolation in this so called victory when one realizes that over 7,500 additional alums have missed the opportunity to contribute. We trust that each of you realize that it presently costs Whittier College $3.00 per alumnus to maintain the services of our present program. We are all counting on you!

An exciting Homecoming is planned, so be sure to save these dates, October 21, 22, and 23. Also, of interest to all, the long awaited new construction has begun on the Chapel and Music Building.

Take the opportunity now to participate in your Association affairs. Write and express your views, whatever they may be, for building a brighter future for Whittier College.

One time student body president, Richard Nixon '34, received rousing welcome on visit to his Alma Mater on August 2.

WELCOME HOME DICK

By James B. Moore

"I believe in the American dream because I have seen it come true in my own life."

—Richard M. Nixon, Vice President of the United States, Acceptance Speech, Chicago, Illinois, July 28, 1960 upon his nomination as Republican Candidate for the Office of President of the United States

The words were among the most memorable of the entire address, but they had a ring of special meaning to the folks around their TV sets back home in Yorba Linda and La Habra and Whittier, California.

That is why, no doubt, President Paul S. Smith, Dick's history and government professor, quoted them from the platform on Hadley Field on the night of August 2, while twenty thousand and better of his home town friends waited to say "Welcome Home Dick!"

This was not the first time Richard M. Nixon '34 had "got off the bench and onto the playing field" (as he put it) on old Hadley Field.

The stands and turf had been jammed with his fellow townspeople on July 28, 1952, eight years before, when Senator Richard Nixon was a candidate for the Office of Vice President at the age of thirty-nine.

Again—June 12, 1954—on his twentieth anniversary of graduation from college, he had spoken on the same field, giving a commencement address "The Crisis In Asia," and receiving the honor of his Alma Mater's Doctor of Laws Degree.

Faculty and townspeople recall there were two reception lines that year. One was for those wishing to shake the Vice President's hand. The other, of course, was for students determined to graduate shaking only the President's hand—President Smith, that is.

The seniors that year had voted, it seems, for the protection of their partisan sanctity. And—true to the spirit of this free land, these free Quakers, and our free college—the administration let them have their way.

On June 13, 1959, Richard Nixon sat among the 325 graduates (there had been 85 in his class twenty-five years before) at Harris Amphitheatre and listened while his cousin, Jessamyn West '23, delivered the address and spoke those remembered lines "I believe in the invincible summer of the human heart."

Then he rose and gave the commencement charge.

There was only one reception line that day.

Whittier students had grown up a little.

For Richard Nixon—the grocery clerk and book-keeper who had disciplined himself to work sixteen hours a day before he was sixteen . . . the brilliant extempore speaker and winner of college debates . . . the first president of the Orthogonians . . . the Quaker student body president who had campaigned for social dancing on campus . . . the man who was too light to play first string tackle but who went out for the team four years anyway . . . the Navy Lieutenant Commander . . . the Congressman . . . the Senator—this Richard Nixon was at this commencement Vice President of all Americans.

And in 1959 perhaps Whittier College students had been reading their history more discerningly and remembered that Richard Nixon had been seven years in an office not given to many. That among the names of those who had sat in this chair were a number most Americans would find familiar, and any college like my own life”

Whittier would be proud to own—John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, John C. Calhoun, John Tyler, Andrew Johnson, Theodore Roosevelt, Thomas R. Marshall, Harry S. Truman.

On the night of August 2, in the fateful Atomic-Space Age-Cold War year of 1960—where once he had cheered his teammates to victory—the massive crowd cheered this disciplined and chastened native son.

Did they think—under the stadium lights in the balmy Southern California air—that this would be the first man in the history of the United States born West of the Rockies ever to achieve this high office should the people choose him in November.

Did they think of the awful burden they might ask him to carry?

“I believe in the American dream,” he said, “because I have seen it come true in my own life.”

There were many there by the huge sign “Welcome Home Dick” who had shared that dream. For them it was a good dream—it is a good dream.

And for all those—whether they had shared the dream or not, however they might cast their ballot—there was none, one thinks, who could say he was not ready to meet its challenge.

The psychological nature of decision-making, whether about buying a new car or electing a political candidate, has come to be understood as a process in which reason and logic are in great measure superseded by deep motives and emotional involvements. In this era of "hidden persuasion" and "motivational research," the product has come to be replaced by the "product image." Out of efforts to influence and control decisions of all kinds, whether related to selecting a brand of cigarettes or supporting a political leader, has come the sure knowledge that when claims and counter claims are cleared away, men really live (more than they usually will care to admit) in a reality of self-enhancement and primary-group ties. The ethics of manipulating the consumer or voter through insights into his unreasoned and vulnerable innerself are beyond the scope of the present analysis. Certainly we may find implications here for the future of free-enterprise economy and democratic government. But our present task is set toward elaborating in a brief way some hidden factors which will play a role in the coming national election.

The public image of a political candidate is fully analogous to the "personality" which is built around a consumer product. When a product is surrounded with an aura of attractive characteristics we will much more quickly accept it than when we are provided only with a technical analysis of its features. This is not to say that practical details about a product go completely unnoticed or remain completely distinct from decision to purchase. We can not be pressed to distort our perceptions of quality, utility, economy, and security in an unlimited way. The obviously inferior (as identified when standards of comparison are available) will not be accepted with all the pink frosting in the world. But in most of our recounting of the practical advantages of brand "A" over brand "X", we are rationalizing the wisdom of a decision already made and keeping alive our self-concept of being reasonable and logical men.

INSIDE THE VOTER

Where it concerns a political candidate, our discussion of issues and our deliberations of party platforms frequently represents a facade behind which lurks our deepest perceptions-of-self and our strongest group ties. We select, both deliberately and unconsciously, from the overwhelming stream of information provided by the mass media, those details which support our belief and faith in our man. Our perceptions are tested and our faith shaken only when incongruity reaches so great a level that we are forced to remold some of our images to preserve our sense of order. This point reached only rarely because of (not completely unintentional) ambiguity which a successful politician provides.

While research has demonstrated that voting behavior, parallel with our basic attitudes, has a fundamental relationship with our group identifications; particularly our family, our socio-economic group, our educational ties, and our relationship to social institutions, this does not mean that the individual man is a closed system. If he were, it would be comparatively easy to lay out our nation precinct by precinct and family by family and show how apparently free men make completely predictable decisions. Of course, the political advisor has long since utilized data from area analysis, but it can not provide unfailing accuracy in prediction or manipulation. Superimposed on the influence of group identifications are a number of idiosyncratic value systems, some stable and some alterable. Such value systems are congruous on one hand with deep unconscious strivings and (as much as possible) on the other hand with current emphasis in the fluid aspects of the broader culture.

Elections are decided, as is apparent from records of the recent past, in the degree to which the voter can be moved to give up, if only temporarily, his personal traditions, and move toward the party or individual offering an image which is satisfactory in terms of multiple and usually conflicting values. Allowing, as is often true with consumer products, that quality or ability are in close balance among alternate candidates, the deciding factors which tip the scales in favor of one man over another frequently develop to be minor aspects of "personality." Thus in a very real way, the party, and judging from recent elections, to an even greater extent the particular candidate will find victory in the degree which he (or it) can communicate strong identification with certain needs and values. It might appear that the course of political success is now made predictable on the basis of subtle suggestions or images, but here prediction fails because of the somewhat uncertain nature of shifting cultural and personal values, and because of the complex of subgroup value differences.

Certainly the modern political candidate will present an aura of honesty, industry, friendliness, strength, self-assurance, and faith in the American dream. He will love children, honor marriage, be for the working man, idealize freedom, and display symbols of status through achievement. Beyond these obvious reflections of American cultural values lie less traditional, but perhaps even more influential orientations toward youthfulness, informality, sophistication, self-expression, adventure, and innovation. It already seems apparent that these new directions for achieving approval in the America of the 60's are being given careful consideration by candidates of the day as they work diligently toward building effective public images. Yet these new aspects of their images must remain somewhat blurred so they do not operate in contra-distinction to the more firmly fixed ideals in our national tradition. Here we can realize the often precarious nature of the road to political success.

Deep inside the voter, often below his awareness, lie his sensitivities to emotional appeals. Identifying with candidates (and to less extent with parties) that provide symbols which enhance his ideal-self, and do not too drastically contradict his primary group ties, the voter will express his democratic rights with the usual lip-service to problems of domestic and foreign affairs which have always been the apparent center of his decision-making.

Greets Eleven Lettermen

Whittier College's new head football coach, John Godfrey, will have his work cut out for him when the 1960 Poet gridders report to him for the opening practice session on September 5.

Godfrey, who moves up from his assistant post to take over for the departed Don Coryell, will greet a meager 11 lettermen from last year's Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference championship squad, and the head mentor apparently steps into a tough rebuilding job.

A new face will be on hand to help Godfrey in his mountainous task. Bob Douglas, who has been the head coach at Grant High School in Portland, Oregon, for the past five years, steps in as the number one assistant on the Poet coaching staff. Also assisting with the varsity will be former Whittier Little All-American halfback Max Fields. Fields will be in his third year as backfield tutor.

The 35-year-old Douglas has 10 years coaching experience. He is a 1949 graduate of Willamette University in Salem, Oregon, where he was captain and an all-conference backfield performer. In his senior year Douglas was presented with the Booth Award, emblematic of the University's outstanding athlete. Douglas holds a masters degree in education from Oregon State College.

Max McCartney, who last played on the Whittier varsity in 1957, returns as head freshman coach. He will be assisted by Gary Jacobsen, a starting guard on last season's varsity.

Heading the list of returnees this season are tackle Ed Bain and backfield handyman Frank Piani who were elected team co-captains by their teammates at the end of the 1959 campaign.

Also on hand to form the nucleus of a team that hopes to bring to the Quaker campus a fourth straight SCIAC title are ends Ken Gregory, one of the nation's top pass grabbers last fall, Ted Uyeda, and Bobby Watkins, guard Mike Quinn, center Jim McAllister, quarterback Billy Vail, and halfbacks Brent McDowell, Greg Risko, and John Sherman.

Other members from last year's team who will be battling for starting berths are linemen Mike Oldham, John Moore, Bob Salmond, and Ron Hansen and backs George Moore and Ted Hanson.

Coach Godfrey is high on several boys up from McCartney's frosh team. End Stan Sanders was a freshman standout and should fit well into Godfrey's wing-T offensive attack. Two big tackles, Dennis McMaster, who was the outstanding frosh lineman, and Dick Peter, will be valuable assets to Whittier's front line.

Guard Kurt Myers and center Ron Colbine are two more sophomores who will bolster the forward wall. Quarterback Rich Harrison was tabbed as the best frosh signal-caller in the conference last season and is ready to give Vail a real argument for the starting berth. Halfbacks Dick Skinner and Rick Kunishima, a pair of rugged runners, should give the Poets plenty of depth in the ball-packing department.

Godfrey has not been idle this summer. He has been out beating the bushes and has come up with several gridiron plums from the fertile junior college fields. Joel Holmberg, 215-pound tackle from East Los Angeles Junior College, is one of Godfrey's prize catches. Also from East L. A. comes quarterback Seitaro Miyano who could press both Vail and Harrison for the coveted signal-calling position left open by the departure of All-American Gary Campbell.

Aylett Wallwork, a speedy 190-pound halfback, comes to the Poet campus via Honolulu, the University of Hawaii, and Cerritos Junior College. Wallwork played frosh ball at Hawaii but stayed out of pads while at Cerritos last year. Godfrey is also hoping to lasso Ron Line, ex-Whittier High School all-CIFer, for a halfback spot. Line has starred for two seasons at Mt. San Antonio Junior College. Bernie Crawford, also from Whittier High and Mt. SAC, could be a big help in the middle of the line. Two other guards, Jim Knap from Orange Coast College and Dave Eagle from Boise Junior College in Idaho, are on the Whittier roster.

When asked about this year's squad Godfrey replied, "We don't plan on losing any games. We don't have 'em four deep in every position, but we've got some outstanding football players who can play the same kind of hard-nosed football Whittier alums have been used to seeing the past three years."

Godfrey, who has worked closely with Coryell for several years says he plans to stress defense and all-out team effort and hopes to maintain the same ferocious defensive play and tackling that has been the trademarks of Coryell-coached Poet elevens.

The Poets have a long way to go before their opening game with the University of San Diego in San Diego on September 17, but it's a good bet that Godfrey will have them up and ready when the curtain comes up on the 1960 football season.

YOUR PLACEMENT SERVICE

Director of Placement, Jane T. Randolph '43, discusses job possibilities with Joyce Heyl '63.

Both Hollinger and Laskey are currently on training program with IBM as result of placement service.

Forty-two business and industrial companies recruited on the Whittier College campus this year to find well-qualified management-potential people for their organizations. They like Whittier College graduates because of their broad liberal arts education. While some recruit for specific knowledge in chemistry, physics, mathematics, accounting, sociology, home economics, many look harder at the broad cultural base a student has covered in his course work, preferring to give the technical training they might require themselves.

Management trainees are sought by such companies as Pacific Telephone and Telegraph, U.S. Rubber, Southern California Edison, Sears Roebuck, Jewel Tea, Continental Can, Fibreboard Paper Products, Bethlehem Steel, Southern Counties Gas, Crane, W. T. Grant, Pacific Finance Corp.

Interest in training for management or technical sales are companies like Upjohn, Ortho Pharmaceutical, IBM, Burroughs.

Students interested in sales positions are recruited by Hallmark Cards, Lever Brothers, Colgate-Palmolive, Good Humor. Insurance companies hire salesmen as well as men having management potential: Equitable Life, Mutual of New York, Aetna Casualty and Surety, Prudential, Allstate, Traveler's, Manufacturer's Life, Occidental Life, Firemen's Fund, Westland Life.

Good opportunities in banking are offered by Citizens National, Bank of America, Security First National. Accountants are in demand at National Broadcasting Co., General Electric Credit Corp., Gladding McBean. Shell Oil Co., Union Oil Co. and North American recruit for technical positions in chemistry.

Social workers are needed by Boy Scouts of America, Red Cross, YMCA, YWCA. A variety of positions are offered by the recruiters from Los Angeles and Orange Counties, California State Personnel Board, and the Federal agencies.

Permanent employment listings were made this year by 62 companies who do not have an actual campus recruitment program. Appropriately qualified students are put in direct contact with these firms.

Part-time and vacation job placement is a major part of the placement office work. Last year 649 such opportunities were listed and 164 students placed. (The placement figure is actually higher because students often fail to report back to the office when they accept a job.)

The Whittier College placement service maintains membership in the Western College Placement Association and thereby is affiliated with the national placement organization. This brings complimentary copies of the College Placement Directory which are distributed to seniors and alumni looking for jobs. The directory lists the occupational needs normally anticipated by more than 1700 corporate and governmental employees, as well as presenting helpful articles on job hunting, training programs, etc.

The placement office is located in the Office of Alumni Relations on the first floor of the Walter F. Dexter Student Center. Interviewing rooms are available to company recruiters and appointments with qualified students are arranged. Jane T. Randolph '43 is director of placement, handling these duties in addition to her work as assistant director of alumni relations.

Recent graduates are not the only ones in demand by the companies who turn to Whittier College for help. Alumni are eagerly sought for positions requiring experienced personnel, job listings go unfilled because few alumni are registered with the placement service as yet. Graduates and former students who wish to take advantage of the free service need only call or write the office.

Spencer '31 spent a day with Wilson and Bob Rockwell, both of the class of '33, in Crawford, Colo., and George Stafford, '32, superintendent of schools at Cedaredge, Colorado. In Paonia he stopped to see Walter and Merle Lund, both from '34, and in Fort Jones, Calif. he visited Bruce '38 and Lanore (Burkett '41) Martin.

'33 Franklin Shoemaker '33 lives in Los Angeles and is still a professional musician. His daughters are 11 and 13.

Vivian (Van Hellen) Jordan '33 is starting her twelfth year as wife of the minister of the Arcadia Church of the Good Shepherd (Methodist). Their son Gregory enrolls at Redlands University this fall and his brother Gilbert is 14. Vivian has just completed a term as president of the 750-member Ministers' Wives Association of the Southern California-Arizona Conference of the Methodist Church. Her interest in music continues. She has directed a boys' choir, a Woman's Club chorus and has done piano accompanying as well as organ work. Her "current" choir numbers 70 girls, grades 4 through 8. She also finds time to sing in the adult choir.

Theodora (Christiansen) Taylor also lives in Arcadia and teaches college preparatory math at Monrovia High School. Her son Bill attends Arcadia High.

Fred Bewley is advisor to the Los Angeles County Committee on School District Organization and should now be addressed as "Dr. Bewley," as he received his degree from USC last June. His dissertation topic was "The Characteristics of Successful School Superintendents." Fred also enjoys the opportunity to serve as a visiting lecturer at Whittier College from time to time, teaching classes in educational administration, law, finance, history and philosophy.

Vincent Sinatra has been a partner in the law firm of Arnerich, del Valle and Sinatra, 639 South Spring Street, Los Angeles, since 1938. Wife, Opal is active in Glendale civic and PTA affairs. Their son Frank attends Glendale High School and hopes to enroll at Whittier. Jowanna is a student at Roosevelt Junior High School.

Ralph Kingsbury is an active recruiter for the college. His daughter, Kathy, entered as a freshman this fall as did his nephew, Larry Sawyer. Judi Sawyer, his niece, graduated in the class of '59. The next prospect is son Phil, 13. Ralph is coordinator of attendance for the Anaheim Union High School District and wife Helen is an elementary school principal in Garden Grove.

Rex Cunningham '33 was graduated from Santa Barbara State College in 1942. By then he was married and the father of two healthy boys. His work has included boys' director of an orphanage in San Anselmo, associate physical director of the Los Angeles Downtown YMCA, and teaching at Bakersfield four years. He and his wife (with a family now of three boys) enjoyed teaching at Avalon for a year. Rex has been teaching for several years in La Habra; two of the boys are in college and one in high school. He says that if and when the class assembles again, he will bring the rolled photo of the entire student body!

Mary Walker is principal of Rhoda Street School in San Fernando Valley. Her home is in Van Nuys.

Ben Allen '33 and wife Jane are parents of four children: Sylvia, 16; Barbara, 15; Bennie, 13; George, 9. Ben says he still enjoys farming and the whole family is active in 4-H Club activities. They also enjoy relaxing at their Big Bear cabin. Ben is president of the Chaffey Union High School District Board of Education, president of the Monte Vista Water District Board and a member of the Monte Vista Fire District Board.

Harriett (Aiken) Haisman lives in Los Angeles. Their two sons are married and there are three grandchildren, including William Haisman IV.

Georgia (Hutchison) Sanborn works at Aerajet in Azusa, doing performance calculation for new rocket propellant systems. She has been there for 6½ years and finds the work fascinating. She enjoyed a Hawaiian vacation in August and her son, Jim, attended a national Boy Scout Jamboree in Colorado Springs. Jim will be a sophomore at Covina High this fall.

Margaret (Chaney) Wilson lives in Granada Hills and teaches at Mayall elementary school. Her husband, John, is an engineer with Los Angeles County. Their three daughters are Alyce Marie, 12; Connie Virginia, 10; and Bonnie Jean, 6. Three girls add up to a lot of PTA and Scout activities for Margaret.

Helen Perkins was graduated from USC in 1938 and has worked for a number of years with the American Friends Service Committee. After a year as secretary for Dr. Coffin at Whittier, she joined the AFSC staff. She spent one year at the Pasadena office, four in Philadelphia, and worked on such special projects as organizing Pacific Oaks School. At present she is administrative assistant in the Interpretation and Finance office at Pasadena. Leaves of absence have been taken for work in Mexico, six months in Europe and six months to work with the Friends Committee on Legislation in Sacramento. In 1956 she enjoyed meeting her sister, Virginia (Perkins) Heck '36, and her four children upon their return from Vienna, and driving them across the country. She says her feet are itching for another big trip, but none is in sight right now.

Charles Dillon teaches at Inglewood High and his son is a senior at Morningside High.

Donald Evans and his wife left August 1 for a year in Europe, planning to spend most of the time in the British Isles where Don plans to write several magazine articles. After retiring from the Los Angeles City Schools in 1957, he worked for the Rodgers-McDonald Publications and served as principal of the Hollywood Academy. He was married in 1957 to Mary Dodge Widenham. Don claims one elective public office: member of the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee, 37th Assembly District. While teaching in Los Angeles, he was president of the California Council for Adult Education, Southern Section. He also served as president of the Los Angeles City Secondary Audio-Visual Coordinators and Representatives.

Arline (Rengler) Brown lives in Montebello. She is employed as a senior accountant by a C.P.A. and her husband, Henry, is a salesman for the Barbara Ann Bakeries. Their son, John, is an eighth grader at St. Benedict School and plans to attend Don Bosco Technical High School. Their daughter Kati, 17, is a senior at Montebello High. She is a "Candy Stripper" at the local hospital and enjoys this volunteer work so much that she plans to major in physiotherapy.

Kenneth Thienes is chairman of the music department at Washington High School in Long Beach. He also has the honor of being president of the Southern California Vocal Association. He enjoyed attending the Music Educators' National Conference held in Atlantic City last March.

Louise Howard works part-time at the Howard Rose Company office in Hemet. She keeps in touch with garden editors of leading newspapers and magazines, informing them of the new roses introduced by them each year. In addition she is in charge of the retail mail-order department. In her "spare time" Louise is director of her Church School, directs a junior choir, keeps house for her mother, and gardens. She concludes, "Variation is my middle name!"

Margaret (Larson) Pressey '31 enjoys ranch life at Vista. She and Edwin '31 report that their eldest daughter, Barbara, is about to present them with twin grandchildren. Their second daughter, Mary, attends college in Kalamazoo, Michigan and enjoyed summer school at Guadalajara last summer. Sons Mark (high school) and Christopher (sixth grade) work with their father on the ranch whenever possible.

Eldon (Red) Cole has returned to California after living in Hermiston, Oregon for a number of years. Red is now divisional sales manager for Walker Scott's new College Grove shopping center in La Mesa. He and Barbara hope to renew acquaintance with a number of California friends.

Herschel and Pauline (Petty) Daugherty live in Beverly Hills. Herschel has achieved a national reputation as a director of motion picture and TV films. Currently he is under contract to M.C.A. and Revue Productions at Universal Studios. Their son, Michael, is a junior in the engineering school at the University of Arizona. He spent the summer touring Europe with the Whittier College group headed by Jerry Patton. Also in the group was Michael's cousin, Linda Soeborg.

Eleanor (Little) Roberts returned to teaching kindergarten in 1956 and now has tenure in Modesto. She has three sons, James, 20, majoring in chemistry at the University of California; Ronald, 18, track and football star at Downey high school in Modesto; Larry, 12, in junior high school.

Marian (Manley) Jobe writes that she and Claire '31 have lived in Taft for nine years. Claire is principal at Taft Union High School and Marian describes herself as "a fixture in the first grade." Their daughter Bonni works in Monterey and son Steve will enter Taft College this fall. The Jobes enjoy the activities of the local camera and trailer clubs. Claire built their 20-foot trailer and they talk hopefully of retirement one of these years, when they plan to "hook up and travel."

Imogene (Sproule) Jones and husband Frank '31, are also Taft teachers. Their oldest child, Donna, graduated from San Jose State College with a major in mathematics. She married a Lockheed engineer and has a baby son. Jerry is in the U.S. Navy and Bruce, the youngest, attends the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Louis and Adella (Hays) Valla are enjoying Washington life. They have traveled quite extensively during the past few years—Europe, Alaska, Mexico and the United States. Adella has been active in AAUW for some years and is now a board member of the Arlington Branch, representative of the Branch on the Headquarters Program Committee and chairman of pages and ushers for the 1961 convention in Washington. She also finds time to serve as secretary of the Women's Guild of the Cleveland Park Congregational Church in Washington and play bridge and golf.

WILLIAM C. JONES '26, former president of Whittier College, is acting president of the University of Oregon, having served since 1953 as dean of administration there. He is a member of the American Society of Public Administration, Pi Gamma Mu, member of the National Board and the John R. Mott Scholarship Committee of the YMCAs of the United States, and on the Pacific Coast Committee of the American Council on Education. He is married to Helen Fe Haworth, and they have two sons, Gordon Charles, teaching at the University of Southern California, and Alfred Haworth.

Two '33 alumni report from Illinois. Mary (Graff) Cornman lives in Springfield. She received degrees from the National College of Education in Evanston and Carleton College after leaving Whittier. She is a first grade teacher. In 1938 she married William Cornman, an engineer with Allis-Chalmers and they have three children. Mary Ann, 21, is an elementary education major at Southern Illinois University and an Alpha Delta Pi at the University of Illinois; Bill, 17, is a high school senior with varsity letters in football, basketball and baseball; Cathy, 10, will be a sixth grader this year. Mary has long been active in PTA, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts, etc. She also finds time to do some piano teaching.

M. J. "Tommy" Thomas lives in Glen Ellyn, a Chicago suburb. He and his wife Leona are parents of John, a senior at Butler University, and Barbara, a high school senior. Tommy has been with Swift and Company for 19 years and is now manager of sales of shortening and oils for the United States and Canada. This entails much traveling, but he says he has never had the good fortune to meet any Whittier alumni.

Charles Kenn is in demand as a speaker, teacher and writer on the history, folklore, language and poetry of the Hawaiian Islands. His work appears in many Hawaiian publications as well as in several poetry anthologies and he is listed in the International Blue Book and Who Knows and What: Among Authorities, Experts and the Specially Informed. Charlie has read papers before the San Jose meeting of the California Historical Society and a number of groups at the University of Hawaii. His recordings of chants and songs are listed in the Library of Congress as the Charles W. Kenn collection. Whittier College eventually will receive his large library, along with contributions from others in the Whittier College Alumni Association. Hawaii Chapter (Charlie is the current president). Civic interests include work in the Republican party, membership on the Recreation Commission and pageant director for a number of occasions. At present he is completing a series of translations from old documents dealing with Hawaiian sports, dances, physical culture methods, etc. He comments with pride on the 27 Hawaiian students now at Whittier; in 1932, he was the only one.

Back on the mainland are a number of '33'ers who never seemed to want to leave California. As a matter of fact, we heard from five who never left Whittier! Elizabeth Saunders '33 attended Whittier one year and was graduated from UCLA. She enjoys her work as an elementary teacher in Pasadena. Dolores (Lautrup) Ball reports that their oldest son, John, was married last summer and is now in the Army, stationed at El Paso. Son Donald enjoyed Dr. Connick's round-the-world tour last summer. Husband Kenny '34 is president of the Whittier Executives Club and a member of the board of the Presbyterian Hospital.

Phyllis (Lehman) Wunder reports that Ed '34 still works for Saunders Bros. in Whittier and that she teaches first graders at Valley View School in East Whittier. Dick '60 their eldest, was graduated from Whittier with high honors and now attends Long Beach State College, working on a Master's degree in music. Bruce also upheld family tradition by serving as freshman class president at the College last year. Carol Lee enters her junior year at California High this fall.

Carmel Ling is district phyhcologist for the Excelsior Union High School District and also is certified by the state as a psychologist. She lives in Whittier with her parents, and they also enjoy their beach home at Huntington Beach. She is a long-time member of the choir of the First Congregational Church in Los Angeles and is active in the California Mathematics Council, serving as regional representative for several years.

Alice (Barmore) Snedecor says that her time is occupied with the activities of her family: husband Harvey, co-owner of Diamond Launderers and Cleaners; daughter Lonna and son Ronald, students at California High School in East Whittier.

Genevieve (Sanders) Sharp has three daughters, Sandy, Judy and Becky. Each attends a different college, and Judy is married. Gen's husband, John, owns Commercial Export Packers, Inc. in Montebello Park, and they live in Montebello. Gen worked in her husband's office for a time, but now enjoys Red Cross volunteer work and her study of art.

Eldon Paddock was married to Virginia Humphries in 1937 and they have one son, Norman Eugene, 17. Eldon owns the Anaheim Nursery at 129 West Bal Road.

Virginia (Keasbey) Moorhead writes that for past three years they have enjoyed rural living on a five-acre ranch west of La Puente. Tolbert '32 is still a real estate broker and land developer in Whittier. Nancy, the youngest daughter, is a student at Whittier High; Linda is a psychological technician at Metropolitan State Hospital; and Margie (Mrs. Rex Thomas) is a second grade teacher—her husband is a Navy ensign.

Over on the coast we find Dean Triggs superintendent of Ventura County Schools since 1944. Wife Jewel Houghton '32, also teaches. Their daughter, Bettine Moody, has furnished the Triggs with three grandchildren, the oldest now seven. Son Tom is an Orthognian at Whittier and plans to be a math teacher. Jim is a tenth grader at Ventura High.

Bob Gibbs is a neighbor of Dean's—he is director of business and special education for the newly-formed Valley Oaks school district in Ventura County. The family lives in Camarillo. Larry, 20, has completed three years with the 82nd Airborne and Verne, 17, was graduated from Camarillo high school last June.

Gwendolyn (Hart) Rudolph writes from Santa Paula that three years out of college she gave up teaching for her best role: wife of school board and Rotary board member, church vestryman and trucking business man; and mother of four. Daughter Darcy has just completed two years of graduate work at Union Theological Seminary, New York; son Derek, is deceased; daughter Robin has completed two years at Agnes Scott College, Georgia; and son Paul, 15, hasn't finished much of anything lately except an originally-designed model airplane. Current volunteer activity for Gwen is serving as worship chairman for the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Santa Barbara Convocation. She also enjoyed being a delegate to the Governor's Conference on Youth in 1958. Ten days at the Winter Olympics were a treat for the Rudolphs last winter.

Laura (Stuhr) Triplet attended the N.E.A. convention in Los Angeles as a delegate from the Delano Elementary Teachers Association.

Up in the Bay Region we find Morris and Audrey (Hollister) Richardson '35, long-time residents of Whittier who are now living near Stanford. Morris is engaged in real estate investments and Audrey plays violin in the Stanford and San Jose Symphony Orchestras, in addition to playing at the Carmel Bach Festival. Son John completed his Ph.D. in chemical engineering at Stanford last summer and is the father of two-year-old David, the Richardson's first grandchild. Daughter Mary is working on the staff at the University of California, where her husband is a candidate for a Ph.D. in geology.
